

Thursday digest

July 25, 2013

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Awet Andemicael on airport encounters with Good Samaritans: "In the pristine white glare of the airport corridor, the linoleum became my prayer rug. But my solitude was short lived."
- John Fea reviews Martin Duberman's biography of Howard Zinn: "Duberman delivers the first biography of Zinn since Zinn's death in 2010. He treats Zinn with kid gloves but does not completely shy away from criticism." (subscription required)
- David Heim on how liberal and conservative Protestants have changed
- Dan Schultz on the PRRI/Brookings survey and religious liberalism

In the news:

- House rejects call to allow nonreligious military chaplains
- Anti-Semitism on downward slide but still rampant online
- Court: Law designating 'Israel' as birthplace unconstitutional