Monday digest

October 28, 2013

Subscribe by RSS feed: magazine, blogs, news. See all feeds.

New today from the Century:

- Amy Frykholm discusses Gravity with Century media columnists Kathryn Reklis, Jason Byassee and Beth Felker Jones: "While Gravity doesn't pass the Bechdel test, it does feature a female lead in a story that isn't about romance or sex. But is it her story or Everyman's?" (subscription required)
- John Buchanan on how to disagree: "In a recent public conversation, I was touched by Richard Mouw's kindness and civility. It gave me hope for my church." (subscription required)
- Debra Dean Murphy on All Hallows Eve hospitality
- Lawrence Wood blogs the lectionary

In the news:

- Fifty years later, C.S. Lewis' legacy shines in US, not his homeland
- o Is yoga religious? An Indian court mulls mandatory school exercises