

Episode 89: Skyfall

March 29, 2021

Daniel Craig as James Bond in Skyfall

Sunday Morning Matinee · 89: Skyfall

As Easter Sunday approaches, Matt and Adam talk about violence, resurrection, and the 2012 James Bond film Skyfall. In the first segment, the two discuss the many iterations of Bond and whether the character and genre have any lasting significance. In the second segment, the conversation centers on James Bond and Resurrection Sunday. Does Bond have anything new to add to our Easter theologies? Finally, Adam talks about Holy Week poetry and Matt considers the art world.

Kelsey McKinney, "The Art World Has Bigger Enemies than Forgers"

Holy Week Poetry Recommendations from Adam:

My Thankfull Heart with Glorying Tongue, Anne Bradstreet

Good Friday, Christina Rossetti

The Donkey, GK Chesterton

This Bread I Break, Dylan Thomas

The Ballad of Mary's Son, Langston Hughes

Simon the Cyrene, Countee Cullen

And a Good Friday Was Had by All, Bruce Dawe

On Belief in the Physical Resurrection of Jesus, Denise Levertov