

Ritual

by Jeanne Murray Walker in the August 1, 2018 issue

If God is the newest thing, the youngest thing, as Meister Eckhart said, then look, He's here as my son hands baby Maggie to the priest, who crosses her with water. Like tic-tac-toe: she entered the O of eternity through the mudroom of birth and the next move is to X her fontanelle with God's good creature, water. See, while she sleeps on, how fragile she is, open to being pierced or blessed, while outside the bright air trembles and a bell starts clanging the whole sky to pieces.